FINDS DORA OTIS

HOMER CROY IS LOOKING UP HIS MISSIONARY FRIENDS.

IS MET BY FOOTMEN

Homer Croy is following the advice, at least some of it, that he says his Nodaway county friends gave him before he started on his trip around the world, for he is looking up the former Nodaway residents who are now doing mission work in the Orient. The first of these missionaries he has found is Miss Dora Otis, who has been in China for the past four years, and in a letter to the Democrat-Forum he tells of his visit with her.

Yesterday I went to Soochow to see Dora Otis, the girl from Hopkins, who went to China four years ago to be a missionary.

I pictured to myself that she would be living under a propped up corner of a roof, with a hungry, haggard look about her eyes and a weak plaintive tremble in her voice, greedy want gnawing at her, and so I was almost knocked limber when she came whirling down to the station to meet me in a carriage with two footmen. I gave her hand a couple of weak shakes, backed off and stared numbly at the two footmen. It was the first time in my life that I had ever been met by two footmen; the last place in the world that I expected to have it happen to me was in China, and the last person in the world I expected to see come whirling up with them was a missionary. On the way to the missionary home I answered her quiver of questions dazedly, all the time keeping my eyes fixed on the two coachmen. I tried to tell her about how many automobiles Maryville had and about the new water tower and about Prof. Hawkins being in the Normal, but the first thing I would know I would be staring at the two stiffed backed coachmen and merely mumbling to her excited questions.

When we went inside I found there a piano and half a dozen servants, my eyes got bigger and bigger. At dinner that evening—did you notice that? DINNER—she had a butler and blackberry pie, and instead of the pinched, hungry look on her face I began to see a hearty, well-fed expression. Then it began to dawn on me that I had absolutely the wrong idea about missionaries. There's no starving, no hollow eyes, no gnawing of bark—they have everything they want and a button on every wall with a servant at the other end.

Soochow, the city she lives in, was old and rickety before Columbus was born. Around the city is a great wall, as high as the Linville, to keep out robbers. Every night the gates are closed so that no one outside can get in; if these were not closed, the robbers would swarm in.

She took me out walking on this wall, which was built long before America was heard of, and what do you think I found growing on it? You could not guess in a hundred years—cockleburs. Regular, old-fashioned Missouri cockleburs. I began to feel at home at once—I did not care if she did have two coachmen—I didn't feel nervous any longer. The top of the wall is covered with dirt and in this the cockleburs were growing just as if they were back on the Hundred and Two. Before I knew it I was thriftly reaching over and trying to pull them up. Just as Dora would be pointing out a beautiful pagoda I would be bent over before I knew it yanking out a cocklebur. The only way that I could enjoy the scenery was to keep my hands in my pockets and keep looking away off in the distance.

Our Nodaway county girl is absorbed in her work. She is looking forward to coming back to Nodaway in July 1915. She gets every fifth year free. She is doing a great and good work.

In all the four years that she has been out here, I am the first person from Nodaway county to shake her hand. She was eager to know about home and about all her old school friends. To them all she sends her love.

Dora Otis will be remembered as the brilliant student in the high school

BRIDGES GO OUT

BIG STRUCTURES ARE BEING REPLACED WITH CULVERTS.

STRAIGHTEN BAD TURN

John Clary Makes 4x4 Culvert Do the Work of a Bridge Eighty-Two Feet Long.

If some one were to mention the fact that a concrete culvert with a 4x4 feet opening was being built across the road an eighth of a mile north of Elmo, no attention would be paid to the matter. But if it is added that this culvert is to replace a steel and wooden bridge eighty-two feet long and nineteen feet high, and will be ample to carry off all the water, the public would sit up and take notice but doubt the matter.

Nevertheless, that very thing is being done under the direction of John Clary, county highway engineer, and is but one of many similar pieces of work which are to put the county roads in the best of condition.

The big bridge has been torn out and the little culvert probably will be finished today. Thirty-two feet of the bridge's eighty-two was constructed of steel, and that part is being moved and rebuilt across a stream at the Al Tudder farm, two miles northeast of Elmo.

The merchants of Elmo and the farmers living just north of the town, with the aid of the township board, are going to do the filling made necessary by the removal of the bridge. The amount of water which the culvert will have to carry drains from an area of forty acres.

When the bridge was built Mr. Clary said that the necessary materials and method of construction necessary to insure safety and permanency to such a fill were not had or known. For the same reason many other bridges from twenty to fifty feet long are being replaced by small culverts. Mr. Clary finds the drainage area that the culvert will have to serve and regulates its size according to the amount of water that the area will shed.

Last spring he offered to do this work if the people of the different communities would haul the materials and do the filling. His proposition was taken up in many instances and much work has been done.

Last fall a bridge seventy-two feet long and sixteen feet high in Union township was replaced by an 8x10 culvert.

Several steel and concrete bridges that will be a lasting improvement to the roads have also been built this summer. One of them is a 30-foot steel girder bridge with a concrete floor and spillway over the slough at the J. L. Scott place, three and one-half miles west of Maryville. This is at the turn in the road where the Brewer and Daniels boys drove off the road and into the flood five years ago last Fourth of July and were drowned. By means of the spillway the course of the stream has been diverted and the road straightened, which practically will avert any similar accidents.

There are yet twenty-four concrete culverts and bridges to be built in the county this year.

WANTS TO CHANGE "ROAD DAYS."

A Week Earlier Will Avoid Their Conflict With the Chautauqua, Says Engineer Clary.

John Clary, county highway engineer, wants to change the dates of the "goods roads days" in the county from August 18 and 19, as set in Governor Major's proclamation, to August 11 and 12.

Mr. Clary's idea in suggesting the change is to avoid a conflict between the campaign and the Nodaway County Chautauqua in Maryville. It is probable that such a change will be made here. With the "good roads days" a week before the Chautauqua the work would get the roads in the best of condition for visitors to the Chautauqua.

PARLE ACQUITTED

IS NOT GUILTY OF CHARGE OF ILLEGAL SALE OF LIQUOR.

VERDICT AT 3:30 O'CLOCK

T. J. Parle was acquitted at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon from a charge of the illegal sale of liquor to David Ferries.

Mr. Parle denied every allegation made against him by Mr. and Mrs. Ferries, and his denials were substantiated by the evidence of Charles Barmann and Dr. G. H. Leach.

J. S. Shinabargar and George R. Ellison, Mr. Parle's attorneys, fought the charge made against Mr. Parle by trying to prove that Mr. and Mrs. Ferries had attempted to blackmail Mr. Parle and in showing Ferries' criminal record.

The trial began at 10 o'clock this morning, and the city hall was crowded with persons interested in the trial. The rest of the forenoon was taken up with the testimony of the witnesses. Court then adjourned until 1:30 o'clock, when the lawyers began their pleas, and after being out about an hour the jury returned its verdict of not guilty.

David Ferries was the first witness called. He said that on Saturday night, May 23, 1914, he and his wife, after attending the tent show, stopped at T. J. Parle's drug store, and that he gave Mr. Parle a dollar and asked him for some gargling oil. He said Mr. Parle looked about on the shelves, and from somewhere produced a bottle that was wrapped up, laid it on the counter and gave him 50 cents in change. He picked the bottle up and with his wife went home. There he said he went into the woodshed, unwrapped the bottle and started to drink, when his wife came out and found him. He took the bottle into the house and set it on the dining room table.

On being cross-examined, Mr. Ferries said:

"I never asked Mr. Parle for a drop of whisky in my life. I've got some prescriptions filled."

When asked if the purchase of the gargling oil was a prescription, he said it was not.

Ferries Has a Criminal Record.

Mr. Ferries was asked if he had not worked in a soap factory at Ft. Madison, Ia., for the state, and replied that he had, stating that it was because he had shot and killed a man.

He testified that he has pleaded guilty in police court here to being drunk four or five times, but later said he could not say just how many times. Mr. Parle's lawyers said that the city records showed he had pleaded guilty to being drunk and disturbing the peace some fifteen times.

Mrs. Ferries was then called to the stand and gave substantially the same testimony her husband had. She said that while in the store that night she had said to her husband, "That's whisky," and he replied, "Sh! Be still, be still."

Gargling Oil Tasted Like Whisky.

Mrs. Ferries also said that after her husband had put the bottle of gargling oil on the table she hid it, and after tasting and smelling its contents, as far as she could tell it contained whisky. She had given the bottle to Chief of Police Moberly, and on its being produced in court she said, "Sure, that's the bottle. I even know that spot on the bottle."

On being asked if she had entered Mr. Parle's drug store Sunday about three weeks ago, and if she had tried to extort money from him, she replied that all she had done was to ask Mr. Parle to "pay Dave out." This was while Mr. Ferries was serving his jail sentence.

Mrs. Ferries became confused in the date of the purchase of the gargling oil, saying at one time that it had been bought May 3 and at another time May 23.

Mr. Moberly then testified to the identity of the bottle shown in court, and City Clerk Bennett said that he had issued licenses to the tent show mentioned in the case, covering the dates from May 18 to May 23.

Charges Attempt to Extort Money.

Mr. Parle next took the stand. He denied that he had ever sold any whisky to Mr. Ferries, and stated that not a particle of the testimony given by Mr. and Mrs. Ferries was true. The last time Mr. Ferries had been in the store was six weeks ago, he said, and then he had ordered Ferries out.

Then Mr. Parle testified that Mrs. Ferries had tried to extort money from him. She came into the store about three weeks ago and said:

"Is this Mr. Parle."

"Yes."

"You want to treat me like a lady and everything will be all right. You sold whisky to my husband. He's in jail and I want money."

Mr. Parle said that he answered:

"Lady, there is absolutely nothing doing."

He said that Dr. J. H. Leach had witnessed this.

Mr. Parle admitted that he had pleaded guilty once before to selling liquor. He said that he had made up a prescription containing whisky for Nick Schumacher, had been indicted by the grand jury, and entered a plea of not guilty, but that his lawyers had told him he had committed an offense, so he changed his plea and paid his fine.

Charles Barmann gave evidence that he had heard Mr. Parle say to Ferries six weeks ago, "No, you get out of here and stay out of here," He said he did not know what Ferries had asked Mr. Parle.

Dr. J. H. Leach was then called and said he had been in the store three weeks ago and heard Mr. Parle say to Mrs. Ferries, "Absolutely nothing doing." With that the testimony was ended, and court adjourned until after dinner, when the lawyers made their pleas.

GUN WOUND KILLS GIRL

Nellie Stewart, the 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Stewart, living five miles northwest of Hopkins, was accidentally shot yesterday afternoon by a playmate, Eddie Gorman, and instantly killed.

The boy is the 12-year-old son of Mrs. Edward Gorman of Chicago, a cousin of Mrs. Stewart, and with his mother is visiting at the Stewart home. Earlier in the day the children were playing with a shotgun, which was an old and seldom used one. Later they took it again and went crow hunting, leaving the house about 4 o'clock. The children had been gone only a short time from the house when the accident occurred.

The boy was carrying the gun and playing with it when it was accidentally discharged, the full load striking the little girl and killing her instantly.

Nellie was the eldest child of the family, the others being two smaller girls, Virginia and Lena, and a baby. Mrs. Stewart has been an invalid for some time.

The funeral will be held Thursday, but no definite arrangements have yet been made.

A CHANGED LIFE

GEORGE KONIG BEGAN TO STUDY AND BECAME A LEADER.

CONGRESS HONORS HIM

(By W. C. Van Cleve.

Washington, D. C., July 18.—Last Sunday the house met in session and paid tribute to the late George Konig of Maryland, a deceased member of the present congress. Mr. Konig had not achieved national prominence, but, as a new member who had served one term and was re-elected to the present congress, he had impressed himself favorably upon the membership as a man of sterling stuff.

The life of this man is worth referring to when others of greater prominence are not mentioned, because it should be a lesson and an inspiration to the boys and young men of this country. We are pleased to refer to examples in more or less ancient history of poor boys who worked themselves into history under great difficulties. With the present educational facilities, however, and the easy access to schools all over the country, it is not considered possible to achieve anything worth while, if these opportunities have been neglected. Ordinarily it is not.

Was an Illiterate Roust-about.

Mr. Konig, unable to either read or write, obtained work in a packing house in Baltimore, where he ran errands and did light labor. He then worked in a shipyard and afterward on a fishing boat, and finally was apprenticed to a ship building concern, where he learned the trade of calking. He became a master at his work, but, as he reached his majority he observed that without education he was badly handicapped in the race for existence, and it suddenly dawned upon him that the time he had been spending in drinking and carousing with no end in view except to dissipate his week's wages, was worse than wasted. He was bright, he was ambitious, and he realized that he would get nowhere without a change. He joined a labor union and noticed that the president and officers were substantial men who had no time for carousing. To quote his own words:

"I saw myself as simply a follower of those better men. This put me to thinking, and I said to myself: George Konig, which are you going to be? A leader or a follower? Why can't you be one of those substantial men instead of one of the bunch?

"Right there I made my choice. I bought a primer and an arithmetic and and several other books to start on, and started for home. 'Hey, George, where are you going?' some of my friends yelled at me. 'Come with us.' 'I am going home,' I answered, and although they jeered at me, when they found out I had bought the books I went home and started plugging. I studied every night and wrestled with those books, first learning the letters and piecing out the words slowly. Hard work? It was the hardest job I have tackled. It was worse than pulling in those nets, but I plugged along and made some headway.

"In time, I became head of my union by a majority of just one vote. The next year my election was unanimous. You see, the boys learned that I was making good and gave me their confidence. Since then I have prospered. I try to be on the level and square and to stick to my friends. When a man does that he is going to get along."

With Education Came Success.

To make a long story short, Mr. Konig faced about, studied and prospered. From an humble calker he rose to be superintendent of the Baltimore pulverizing works. He became president of his union. He served several years in the Baltimore city council and was regarded so well that his people elected him to congress. He began well here and they re-elected him, but death ended his progrss.

He was made of substantial stuff, he had the grit to tackle what many a boy has considered insurmountable obstacles, he was honest and conscientious in his work, he had the desire to be not a follower but a leader, and he persevered until he went to the front. How many boys have given up in the face of such a rough road as lay before this boy and drifted aimlessly and landed nowhere. His success shows how much there is in store for those who will.

PROSPERITY FOR THE PEOPLE.

The effort of Republican politicians to manufacture an industrial scare and to frighten the business of the country into returning them to power is meeting with scant success. The appearance of the g. o. p. as a calamity howler is not becoming. From all parts of the country come reports of an industrial revival, and big as well as little business men assert that we are on the threshold of an exceedingly prosperous era in which prosperity all the people, and not trusts alone, will share.

BOOHER, THE FAITHFUL OFFICIAL

Statesmen of the fourth district paid a just compliment to a faithful official when they failed to file in opposition to Congressman Booher for the democratic nomination.

No man has ever been more faithful to his constituents nor made greater effort to justly and fairly represent them. He sticks to his post of duty regardless of personal comfort or consideration. He votes his honest convictions on all questions that come before the house for consideration, and devotes his whole thought and attention to the interests of his constituents.

This fact has become so generally known and appreciated that ambitious Democrats decided it was a waste of effort to try to dislodge him now, and no Republican cared to attempt it on his own initiative. Mr. Booher also has won the respect and confidence of his fellow members in congress, and the services of every experienced member will be needed in the next congress.

THE SUPREME COURT VACANCY.

The death of Justice Lurton of the United States supreme court affords President Wilson the first opportunity he has had to make an appointment to that body. As a consequence there is considerable interest manifested in the forthcoming appointment. President Taft was enabled practically to make over the supreme court, there being no less than five vacancies in the total membership of nine. He appointed Justice Lurton, also Justices Hughes, Van Devanter, Lamar and Pitney.

Justices Holmes and McKenna have reached the retiring age, if they desire to avail themselves of it, and Chief Justice White will be 70 next year. As a rule judges in good health prefer to lead an active life and do not care to avail themselves of the retirement privilege so long as they are able to do full duty.

The supreme court, while a conservative body, has in recent years partaken considerably of the national trend of thought and is more progressive than in former years. It is more progressive than some of the lower federal courts. The appointment of one or two members ofttimes gives an entirely new shade to its mental make up.

President Wilson is in some respects regarded as radical, but, in the main, his thought is along conservative lines and his first appointment will be regarded with perhaps more than ordinary interest.

TELLS OF SIX KINDS OF DOCTORS.

Rev. R. L. Finch Says "Educational Doctor Must Have All the Qualifications of the Others.

The Rev. Robert L. Finch spoke to the Normal school students this morning during the assembly hour on the subject of "Doctors." He divided the subject into six heads, as humanity is ministered to largely by six types of physicians, he said.

The first is the healer of morals, commonly known as the preacher. He, unlike the doctor of medicine, goes to his patients more often than they come to him for treatment, and alleviates their suffering by adjusting the conditions which cause the ailment.

The second doctor deals with physical ailments. He first remedies the ill, next inquires into the causes of the condition, and last takes preventive measures.

The third class of physicians is that which deals with legal ills. "He," said Rev. Finch, "first diagnoses the case, then forms an opinion, and next operates, sometimes on the patient and more often on the pocketbook."

The fourth doctor deals with a new sort of healing, that of business ills. He is a person who "operates" when a business enterprise is not as remunerative as it should be, and after he has investigated the causes, attempts to set the enterprise upon a paying basis.

The fifth type of doctor is also a comparatively recent innovation and is commonly called a social worker, and tries to remedy social evils.

The last kind of physician is he who works upon the educational evils of the present day. He, unlike the medical doctor, spends his years of preparation in diagnosing the case, by getting a comprehensive survey on the conditions with which he is to deal. He must not only be a specialist in the field of education, but must have in a greater or less degree the qualifications of all the rest of the doctors mentioned.

Mr. Finch said that the Normal students belong largely to this last class, and they should be ashamed if their only goal in teaching is dollars and cents.

"The position of the conscientious teacher," said the speaker, "is one of the most dignified in the community, and the calling is almost as holy as that of the ministry. It is one of the greatest ways in which to be of the greatest service to both humanity and God."

INJURED IN COLLISION.

Mrs. Roy Mulwee of Barnard Badly Hurt Yesterday Afternoon.

Mrs. Roy Mulwee, living west of Barnard, was injured yesterday afternoon, when the buggy in which she was riding was struck by a passing auto and she was thrown out. Mrs. Mulwee was very severely bruised, her face was cut above and below her eye so that several stitches were required in the dressing and one hip was hurt. Her companion, a sister-in-law, Miss Mulwee, was thrown out, but was unhurt.

The women were driving home, and as they were crossing a small culvert an auto driven by a party of tourists from Emporia, Kan., attempted to pass. The auto struck the vehicle broke one wheel and threw both occupants out. The accident happened near the Eugene Ogden farm, west of Barnard, and within a mile of Mrs. Mulwee's home. The driver of the car and his party assisted in caring for the injured woman and then came to Maryville. Mrs. Mulwee was improved today, and while severely hurt is not in a serious condition. The autoists were Mrs. J. O. Southard and children and chauffeur of Emporia, Kan., who are in Maryville today visiting Mrs. Ida Adle and family. They are en route to St. Paul.

CARBAJAL MAY GIVE BATTLE

New President Insists on Guarantees of Safety to Life.

Washington, July 22.—Provisional President Carbajal does not intend to surrender unconditionally to General Carranza and will concentrate his military forces and resist an invasion rather than permit the Constitutionalists to enter Mexico City with previous agreements not to wreak vengeance on the lives and property of those who supported General Huerta.

This is the tenor of information from authoritative sources in Mexico City to Washington diplomats. It spread a feeling of pessimism in some quarters over the possibility of an amicable settlement of the revolution.

RECORDS FALL AT CLEVELAND

In the third and final heat of the Ohio stake, the day's classic, Star Winter established a new mark of 2:05 for the event and also trotted the fastest mile of the year on any track.

No Mercy For Them.

Los Angeles, July 22.—Every man who took an active part in the events surrounding and leading to the assassination of President Madero "will be dealt with as a criminal," according to a telegram from the headquarters of General Carranza. The telegram was sent to Adolphe Carrillo, Constitutionalist consul here, and was signed by Secretary of Foreign Relations Fabela.

Homer Croy is following the advice, at least some of it, that he says his Nodaway county friends gave him before he started on his trip around the world, for he is looking up the former Nodaway residents who are now doing mission work in the Orient. The first of these missionaries he has found is Miss Dora Otis, who has been in China for the past four years, and in a letter to the Democrat-Forum he tells of his visit with her.

Yesterday I went to Soochow to see Dora Otis, the girl from Hopkins, who went to China four years ago to be a missionary.

I pictured to myself that she would be living under a propped up corner of a roof, with a hungry, haggard look about her eyes and a weak plaintive tremble in her voice, greedy want gnawing at her, and so I was almost knocked limber when she came whirling down to the station to meet me in a carriage with two footmen. I gave her hand a couple of weak shakes, backed off and stared numbly at the two footmen. It was the first time in my life that I had ever been met by two footmen; the last place in the world that I expected to have it happen to me was in China, and the last person in the world I expected to see come whirling up with them was a missionary. On the way to the missionary home I answered her quiver of questions dazedly, all the time keeping my eyes fixed on the two coachmen. I tried to tell her about how many automobiles Maryville had and about the new water tower and about Prof. Hawkins being in the Normal, but the first thing I would know I would be staring at the two stiffed backed coachmen and merely mumbling to her excited questions.

When we went inside I found there a piano and half a dozen servants, my eyes got bigger and bigger. At dinner that evening—did you notice that? DINNER—she had a butler and blackberry pie, and instead of the pinched, hungry look on her face I began to see a hearty, well-fed expression. Then it began to dawn on me that I had absolutely the wrong idea about missionaries. There's no starving, no hollow eyes, no gnawing of bark—they have everything they want and a button on every wall with a servant at the other end.

Soochow, the city she lives in, was old and rickety before Columbus was born. Around the city is a great wall, as high as the Linville, to keep out robbers. Every night the gates are closed so that no one outside can get in; if these were not closed, the robbers would swarm in.

She took me out walking on this wall, which was built long before America was heard of, and what do you think I found growing on it? You could not guess in a hundred years—cockleburs. Regular, old-fashioned Missouri cockleburs. I began to feel at home at once—I did not care if she did have two coachmen—I didn't feel nervous any longer. The top of the wall is covered with dirt and in this the cockleburs were growing just as if they were back on the Hundred and Two. Before I knew it I was thriftly reaching over and trying to pull them up. Just as Dora would be pointing out a beautiful pagoda I would be bent over before I knew it yanking out a cocklebur. The only way that I could enjoy the scenery was to keep my hands in my pockets and keep looking away off in the distance.

Our Nodaway county girl is absorbed in her work. She is looking forward to coming back to Nodaway in July 1915. She gets every fifth year free. She is doing a great and good work.

In all the four years that she has been out here, I am the first person from Nodaway county to shake her hand. She was eager to know about home and about all her old school friends. To them all she sends her love.

BRIDGES GO OUT

BIG STRUCTURES ARE BEING REPLACED WITH CULVERTS.

STRAIGHTEN BAD TURN

John Clary Makes 4x4 Culvert Do the Work of a Bridge Eighty-Two Feet Long.

If some one were to mention the fact that a concrete culvert with a 4x4 feet opening was being built across the road an eighth of a mile north of Elmo, no attention would be paid to the matter. But if it is added that this culvert is to replace a steel and wooden bridge eighty-two feet long and nineteen feet high, and will be ample to carry off all the water, the public would sit up and take notice but doubt the matter.

Nevertheless, that very thing is being done under the direction of John Clary, county highway engineer, and is but one of many similar pieces of work which are to put the county roads in the best of condition.

The big bridge has been torn out and the little culvert probably will be finished today. Thirty-two feet of the bridge's eighty-two was constructed of steel, and that part is being moved and rebuilt across a stream at the Al Tudder farm, two miles northeast of Elmo.

The merchants of Elmo and the farmers living just north of the town, with the aid of the township board, are going to do the filling made necessary by the removal of the bridge. The amount of water which the culvert will have to carry drains from an area of forty acres.

When the bridge was built Mr. Clary said that the necessary materials and method of construction necessary to insure safety and permanency to such a fill were not had or known. For the same reason many other bridges from twenty to fifty feet long are being replaced by small culverts. Mr. Clary finds the drainage area that the culvert will have to serve and regulates its size according to the amount of water that the area will shed.

Last spring he offered to do this work if the people of the different communities would haul the materials and do the filling. His proposition was taken up in many instances and much work has been done.

Last fall a bridge seventy-two feet long and sixteen feet high in Union township was replaced by an 8x10 culvert.

Several steel and concrete bridges that will be a lasting improvement to the roads have also been built this summer. One of them is a 30-foot steel girder bridge with a concrete floor and spillway over the slough at the J. L. Scott place, three and one-half miles west of Maryville. This is at the turn in the road where the Brewer and Daniels boys drove off the road and into the flood five years ago last Fourth of July and were drowned. By means of the spillway the course of the stream has been diverted and the road straightened, which practically will avert any similar accidents.

There are yet twenty-four concrete culverts and bridges to be built in the county this year.

WANTS TO CHANGE "ROAD DAYS."

A Week Earlier Will Avoid Their Conflict With the Chautauqua, Says Engineer Clary.

John Clary, county highway engineer, wants to change the dates of the "goods roads days" in the county from August 18 and 19, as set in Governor Major's proclamation, to August 11 and 12.

Mr. Clary's idea in suggesting the change is to avoid a conflict between the campaign and the Nodaway County Chautauqua in Maryville. It is probable that such a change will be made here. With the "good roads days" a week before the Chautauqua the work would get the roads in the best of condition for visitors to the Chautauqua.

PARLE ACQUITTED

IS NOT GUILTY OF CHARGE OF ILLEGAL SALE OF LIQUOR.

VERDICT AT 3:300'CLOCK

Mr. Parle denied every allegation made against him by Mr. and Mrs. Ferries, and his denials were substantiated by the evidence of Charles Barmann and Dr. G. H. Leach.

J. S. Shinabargar and George R. Ellison, Mr. Parle's attorneys, fought the charge made against Mr. Parle by trying to prove that Mr. and Mrs. Ferries had attempted to blackmail Mr. Parle and in showing Ferries' criminal record.

The trial began at 10 o'clock this morning, and the city hall was crowded with persons interested in the trial. The rest of the forenoon was taken up with the testimony of the witnesses. Court then adjourned until 1:30 o'clock, when the lawyers began their pleas, and after being out about an hour the jury returned its verdict of not guilty.

David Ferries was the first witness called. He said that on Saturday night, May 23, 1914, he and his wife, after attending the tent show, stopped at T. J. Parle's drug store, and that he gave Mr. Parle a dollar and asked him for some gargling oil. He said Mr. Parle looked about on the shelves, and from somewhere produced a bottle that was wrapped up, laid it on the counter and gave him 50 cents in change. He picked the bottle up and with his wife went home. There he said he went into the woodshed, unwrapped the bottle and started to drink, when his wife came out and found him. He took the bottle into the house and set it on the dining room table.

On being cross-examined, Mr. Ferries said:

"I never asked Mr. Parle for a drop of whisky in my life I've got some prescriptions filled."

When asked if the purchase of the gargling oil was a prescription, he said it was not.

Ferries Has a Criminal Record.

Mr. Ferries was asked if he had not worked in a soap factory at Ft. Madison, Ia., for the state, and replied that he had, stating that it was because he had shot and killed a man.

He testified that he has pleaded guilty in police court here to being drunk four or five times. but later said he could not say just how many times. Mr. Parle's lawyers said that the city records showed he had pleaded guilty to being drunk and disturbing the peace some fifteen times.

Mrs. Ferries was then called to the stand and gave substantially the same testimony her husband had. She said that while in the store that night she had said to her husband, "That's whisky," and he replied, "Sh! Be still, be still."

Gargling Oil Tasted Like Whisky.

Mrs. Ferries also said that after her husband had put the bottle of gargling oil on the table she hid it, and after tasting and smelling its contents, as far as she could tell it contained whisky. She had given the bottle to Chief of Police Moberly, and on its being produced in court she said, "Sure, that's the bottle. I even know that spot on the bottle."

On being asked if she had entered Mr. Parle's drug store Sunday about three weeks ago, and if she had tried to extort money from him, she replied that all she had done was to ask Mr. Parle to "pay Dave out." This was while Mr. Ferries was serving his jail sentence.

Mrs. Ferries became confused in the date of the purchase of the gargling oil, saying at one time that it had been bought May 3 and at another time May 23.

Mr. Moberly then testified to the identity of the bottle shown in court, and City Clerk Bennett said that he had issued licenses to the tent show mentioned in the case, covering the dates from May 18 to May 23.

Charges Attempt to Extort Money.

Mr. Parle next took the stand. He denied that he had ever sold any whisky to Mr. Ferries, and stated that not a particle of the testimony given by Mr. and Mrs. Ferries was true. The last time Mr. Ferries had been in the store was six weeks ago, he said, and then he had ordered Ferries out.

Then Mr. Parle testified that Mrs. Ferries had tried to extort money from him. She came into the store about three weeks ago and said:

"Is this Mr. Parle."

"Yes."

"You want to treat me like a lady and everything will be all right. You sold whisky to my husband. He's in jail and I want money."

Mr. Parle said that he answered:

"Lady, there is absolutely nothing doing."

He said that Dr. J. H. Leach had witnessed this.

Mr. Parle admitted that he had pleaded guilty once before to selling liquor. He said that he had made up a prescription containing whisky for Nick Schumacher, had been indicted by the grand jury, and entered a plea of not guilty, but that his lawyers had told him he had committed an offense, so he changed his plea and paid his fine.

Charles Barmann gave evidence that he had heard Mr. Parle say to Ferries six weeks ago, "No, you get out of here and stay out of here," He said he did not know what Ferries had asked Mr. Parle.

Dr. J. H. Leach was then called and said he had been in the store three weeks ago and heard Mr. Parle say to Mrs. Ferries, "Absolutely nothing doing." With that the testimony was ended, and court adjourned until after dinner, when the lawyers made their pleas.

GUN WOUND KILLS GIRL

Nellie Stewart, the 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Stewart, living five miles northwest of Hopkins, was accidentally shot yesterday afternoon by a playmate, Eddie Gorman, and instantly killed.

The boy is the 12-year-old son of Mrs. Edward Gorman of Chicago, a cousin of Mrs. Stewart, and with his mother is visiting at the Stewart home. Earlier in the day the children were playing with a shotgun, which was an old and seldom used one. Later they took it again and went crow hunting, leaving the house about 4 o'clock. The children had been gone only a short time from the house when the accident occurred.

The boy was carrying the gun and playing with it when it was accidentally discharged, the full load striking the little girl and killing her instantly.

Nellie was the eldest child of the family, the others being two smaller girls, Virginia and Lena, and a baby. Mrs. Stewart has been an invalid for some time.

The funeral will be held Thursday, but no definite arrangements have yet been made.

A CHANGED LIFE

GEORGE KONIG BEGAN TO STUDY AND BECAME A LEADER.

CONGRESS HONORS HIM

(By W. C. Van Cleve.

Washington, D. C., July 18.—Last Sunday the house met in session and paid tribute to the late George Konig of Maryland, a deceased member of the present congress. Mr. Konig had not achieved national prominence, but, as a new member who had served one term and was re-elected to the present congress, he had impressed himself favorably upon the membership as a man of sterling stuff.

The life of this man is worth referring to when others of greater prominence are not mentioned, because it should be a lesson and an inspiration to the boys and young men of this country. We are pleased to refer to examples in more or less ancient history of poor boys who worked themselves into history under great difficulties. With the present educational facilities, however, and the easy access to schools all over the country, it is not considered possible to achieve anything worth while, if these opportunities have been neglected. Ordinarily it is not.

Was an Illiterate Roust-about.

Mr. Konig, unable to either read or write, obtained work in a packing house in Baltimore, where he ran errands and did light labor. He then worked in a shipyard and afterward on a fishing boat, and finally was apprenticed to a ship building concern, where he learned the trade of calking. He became a master at his work, but, as he reached his majority he observed that without education he was badly handicapped in the race for existence, and it suddenly dawned upon him that the time he had been spending in drinking and carousing with no end in view except to dissipate his week's wages, was worse than wasted. He was bright, he was ambitious, and he realized that he would get nowhere without a change. He joined a labor union and noticed that the president and officers were substantial men who had no time for carousing. To quote his own words:

"I saw myself as simply a follower of those better men. This put me to thinking, and I said to myself: George Konig, which are you going to be? A leader or a follower? Why can't you be one of those substantial men instead of one of the bunch?

"Right there I made my choice. I bought a primer and an arithmetic and and several other books to start on, and started for home. 'Hey, George, where are you going?' some of my friends yelled at me. 'Come with us.' 'I am going home,' I answered, and although they jeered at me, when they found out I had bought the books I went home and started plugging. I studied every night and wrestled with those books, first learning the letters and piecing out the words slowly. Hard work? It was the hardest job I have tackled. It was worse than pulling in those nets, but I plugged along and made some headway.

"In time, I became head of my union by a majority of just one vote. The next year my election was unanimous. You see, the boys learned that I was making good and gave me their confidence. Since then I have prospered. I try to be on the level and square and to stick to my friends. When a man does that he is going to get along."

With Education Came Success.

To make a long story short, Mr. Konig faced about, studied and prospered. From an humble calker he rose to be superintendent of the Baltimore pulverizing works. He became president of his union. He served several years in the Baltimore city council and was regarded so well that his people elected him to congress. He began well here and they re-elected him, but death ended his progrss.

He was made of substantial stuff, he had the grit to tackle what many a boy has considered insurmountable obstacles, he was honest and conscientious in his work, he had the desire to be not a follower but a leader, and he persevered until he went to the front. How many boys have given up in the face of such a rough road as lay before this boy and drifted aimlessly and landed nowhere. His success shows how much there is in store for those who will.

PROSPERITY FOR THE PEOPLE.

The effort of Republican politicians to manufacture an industrial scare and to frighten the business of the country into returning them to power is meeting with scant success. The appearance of the g. o. p. as a calamity howler is not becoming. From all parts of the country come reports of an industrial revival, and big as well as little business men assert that we are on the threshold of an exceedingly prosperous era in which prosperity all the people, and not trusts alone, will share.

BOOHER, THE FAITHFUL OFFICIAL

Statesmen of the fourth district paid a just compliment to a faithful official when they failed to file in opposition to Congressman Booher for the democratic nomination.

No man has ever been more faithful to his constituents nor made greater effort to justly and fairly represent them. He sticks to his post of duty regardless of personal comfort or consideration. He votes his honest convictions on all questions that come before the house for consideration, and devotes his whole thought and attention to the interests of his constituents.

This fact has become so generally known and appreciated that ambitious Democrats decided it was a waste of effort to try to dislodge him now, and no Republican cared to attempt it on his own initiative. Mr. Booher also has won the respect and confidence of his fellow members in congress, and the services of every experienced member will be needed in the next congress.

THE SUPREME COURT VACANCY.

The death of Justice Lurton of the United States supreme court affords President Wilson the first opportunity he has had to make an appointment to that body. As a consequence there is considerable interest manifested in the forthcoming appointment. President Taft was enabled practically to make over the supreme court, there being no less than five vacancies in the total membership of nine. He appointed Justice Lurton, also Justices Hughes, Van Devanter, Lamar and Pitney.

Justices Holmes and McKenna have reached the retiring age, if they desire to avail themselves of it, and Chief Justice White will be 70 next year. As a rule judges in good health prefer to lead an active life and do not care to avail themselves of the retirement privilege so long as they are able to do full duty.

The supreme court, while a conservative body, has in recent years partaken considerably of the national trend of thought and is more progressive than in former years. It is more progressive than some of the lower federal courts. The appointment of one or two members ofttimes gives an entirely new shade to its mental make up.

President Wilson is in some respects regarded as radical, but, in the main, his thought is along conservative lines and his first appointment will be regarded with perhaps more than ordinary interest.

The Rev. Robert L. Finch spoke to the Normal school students this morning during the assembly hour on the subject of "Doctors." He divided the subject into six heads, as humanity is ministered to largely by six types of physicians, he said.

The first is the healer of morals, commonly known as the preacher. He, unlike the doctor of medicine, goes to his patients more often than they come to him for treatment, and alleviates their suffering by adjusting the conditions which cause the ailment.

The second doctor deals with physical ailments. He first remedies the ill, next inquires into the causes of the condition, and last takes preventive measures.

The third class of physicians is that which deals with legal ills. "He," said Rev. Finch, "first diagnoses the case, then forms an opinion, and next operates, sometimes on the patient and more often on the pocketbook."

The fourth doctor deals with a new sort of healing, that of business ills. He is a person who "operates" when a business enterprise is not as remunerative as it should be, and after he has investigated the causes, attempts to set the enterprise upon a paying basis.

The last kind of physician is he who works upon the educational evils of the present day. He, unlike the medical doctor, spends his years of preparation in diagnosing the case, by getting a comprehensive survey on the conditions with which he is to deal. He must not only be a specialist in the field of education, but must have in a greater or less degree the qualifications of all the rest of the doctors mentioned.

Mr. Finch said that the Normal students belong largely to this last class, and they should be ashamed if their only goal in teaching is dollars and cents.

"The position of the conscientious teacher," said the speaker, "is one of the most dignified in the community, and the calling is almost as holy as that of the ministry. It is one of the greatest ways in which to be of the greatest service to both humanity and God."

Who Deposits Your Dollars ?

It seems strange that some people will insist upon contributing to the growing wealth of everybody but themselves. Somebody is paying you and you are paying the other fellow. The other fellow is likely running a bank account, and accumulating a certain portion of every dollar you pay.

Where Do You Come In?

Why not save and deposit a portion of your dollars for yourself? Open an account with this bank any amount will do to start with.

INJURED IN COLLISION.

Mrs. Roy Mulwee of Barnard Badly Hurt Yesterday Afternoon.

Mrs. Roy Mulwee, living west of Barnard, was injured yesterday afternoon, when the buggy in which she was riding was struck by a passing auto and she was thrown out. Mrs. Mulwee was very severely bruised, her face was cut above and below her eye so that several stitches were required in the dressing and one hip was hurt. Her companion, a sister-in-law, Miss Mulwee, was thrown out, but was unhurt.

The women were driving home, and as they were crossing a small culvert an auto driven by a party of tourists from Emporia, Kan., attempted to pass. The auto struck the vehicle broke one wheel and threw both occupants out. The accident happened near the Eugene Ogden farm, west of Barnard, and within a mile of Mrs. Mulwee's home. The driver of the car and his party assisted in caring for the injured woman and then came to Maryville. Mrs. Mulwee was improved today, and while severely hurt is not in a serious condition. The autoists were Mrs. J. O. Southard and children and chauffeur of Emporia, Kan., who are in Maryville today visiting Mrs. Ida Adle and family. They are en route to St. Paul.

and the girl who took so many honors at Columbia. She is a sister of Merrill Otis, the prosperous young St. Joseph attorney.

Just as I was getting on the train to leave I saw that there was something on Dora's mind. Her conscience was troubling her. While the train was panting away she leaned over and whispered into my ear, just as the engine was beginning to cough. "I must be honest with you. I must tell you before you leave. That carriage and those two coachmen are not mine—I just hired them to meet you!"

CARBAJAL MAY GIVE BATTLE

New President Insists on Guarantees of Safety to Life.

Washington, July 22.—Provisional President Carbajal does not intend to surrender unconditionally to General Carranza and will concentrate his military forces and resist an invasion rather than permit the Constitutionalists to enter Mexico City with previous agreements not to wreak vengeance on the lives and property of those who supported General Huerta. This is the tenor of information from authoritative sources in Mexico City to Washington diplomats. It spread a feeling of pessimism in some quarters over the possibility of an amicable settlement of the revolution.

RECORDS FALL AT CLEVELAND

William Paces Fast Heats at Grand Circuit Races.

In the third and final heat of the Ohio stake, the day's classic, Star Winter established a new mark of 2:05 for the event and also trotted the fastest mile of the year on any track.

No Mercy For Them.

Los Angeles, July 22.—Every man who took an active part in the events surrounding and leading to the assassination of President Madero "will be dealt with as a criminal," according to a telegram from the headquarters of General Carranza. The telegram was sent to Adolphe Carrillo, Constitutionalist consul here, and was signed by Secretary of Foreign Relations Fabela.
